

European Accounting Review 2021 Annual Conference

18-19 November, 2021

Call for Papers

The 2021 European Accounting Review Annual Conference will be held online. The Conference is organized by EAR with virtual hosting and support by the European Accounting Association.

We invite submissions of original papers addressing research questions in all areas of accounting research. European Accounting Review emphasizes openness and flexibility, not only regarding the substantive issues of accounting research, but also with respect to paradigms, methodologies, and styles of conducting that research. EAR is global in scope and welcomes submissions relating to any country or region that clearly communicate relevance to an international audience.

In addition, EAR features a (i) ‘Young Scholar Track,’ for submissions by non-tenured faculty, and Ph.D. students, where job market papers are particularly well received, and a (ii) ‘Open Science’ section that particularly welcomes papers that discuss important problems in research methods and design across all paradigms and methods (field, experimental, archival). In the ‘Open Science’ section, data and code will be assessed as potential separate contributions to the literature in addition to the actual findings of the study per se.

Submissions that fit either the ‘Young Scholar’ or the ‘Open Science’ tracks are encouraged and will receive special consideration by the editorial team.

SUBMISSION DEADLINE: January 31, 2021

Original contributions should be submitted at <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rear>.

Submissions are treated as submissions to EAR, and should not be under review at any other journal. All papers will be refereed and decisions should be conveyed to authors by the middle of May 2020. Subject to satisfactory revision, accepted conference papers will be published in the conference issue of EAR in 2022.

Conference attendance is by invitation. EAA members interested in attending should request an invitation. The Conference will start midday (CET time) on 18 November 2021.