Call for applications: Assistant Professor (w. tenure track)

Ca' Foscari University of Venice

Department of Business and Management Studies

The Ca' Foscari Department of Business and Management Studies offers an opportunity for a highly motivated individual to make a significant contribution to research and teaching in the field of Strategic Management Accounting and to join a research group which deals with representations (accounting, narrative, visual ones etc.) and the strategy process, in order to support the development of scientific knowledge and practical expertise concerning the use of representations to support strategic innovation.

This position is offered in the group of accounting and strategy, and is related to the creation of a "Strategic Innovation Center".

For this role, you must have, or be close to obtaining, a PhD and be able to demonstrate a record of developing high quality research and publications, as well as experience or interest in teaching strategic management accounting at undergraduate and postgraduate levels. Strong skills in qualitative research are appreciated.

The Faculty of Economics and Management in Ca' Foscari University of Venice has been historically the first institution (1868) in Italy and the second in Europe addressing in the field of business higher education, and offers currently a productive, research oriented environment.
