

Wendy L. Currie is Professor of Information Systems and Management at Audencia Business School, France. Her research interests include, digital transformation, regulation of digital assets (cryptocurrency, AI, blockchain) and cross-national comparisons of digital technology. She is founding editor of Health Policy and Technology. Her research has been widely published in leading academic journals in information systems and management. She holds a BSc in Sociology, PhD in Management (both from the UK) and HDR from the University of Nantes, France. She also holds a fractional post at the University of Bradford, UK.